Key Takeaways

Remote control miniature distribution boxes typically range from €50 to €500 or more, depending on features, channels, and industrial specifications. Consumer and Residential Models

For home automation and small-scale applications, WiFi-enabled miniature circuit breakers or smart distribution boxes are available. For example, a 1P AC 230V WiFi circuit breaker with remote control functionality can be purchased on Amazon for around €50–€100. These units allow control via mobile apps, support overload and short-circuit protection, and are suitable for single-phase residential setups .

Advanced Smart Distribution Panels

For more complex setups, such as 8CH, 16CH, or 32CH smart distribution boards, prices increase due to additional channels, energy monitoring, and integration with platforms like Tuya or Raspberry Pi CM4 modules. These panels allow remote control via internet or 4G SIM modules and can handle multiple AC220V outputs. Prices for these units typically range from €150 to €400, depending on the number of channels and included features .

Industrial and Commercial Units

Industrial-grade remote control distribution boxes, including AC/DC power distribution cabinets with RTU (Remote Terminal Unit) or recloser controllers, are designed for high durability, remote monitoring, and fault detection. These units are often customized and priced higher, generally starting around €300–€500 and can exceed €1,000 for large-scale or highly specialized systems .

Factors Affecting Price

- Number of channels/relays: More channels increase cost.
- Smart features: WiFi, 4G connectivity, energy monitoring, and app integration add to the price.
- Voltage and amperage ratings: Higher capacity units are more expensive.
- Material and durability: Industrial-grade enclosures with weather resistance or corrosion protection cost more.
- Customization: Special mounting, labeling, or integration with building management systems can increase the total cost . In summary, for a basic residential remote control miniature distribution box, expect €50–€100, while advanced smart or industrial units can range from €150 to over €500, depending on specifications and features.
